Nurse Amber met Chajuanna in her 28th week of pregnancy, when Chajuanna was experiencing complications. Amber was able to provide critical support during the challenging time leading up to the premature birth of Chajuanna’s daughter. Amber continued regular visits to provide support with newborn care, recovery and breastfeeding.

As an advocate for Chajuanna, Amber also connected her with a WiNGS financial coach, who worked with her to develop a household budget, and build a savings to start the business of her dreams. Through the WiNGS Women’s Enterprise Center program, Chajuanna took even further steps toward that dream, and thereafter launched North Star Catering Company.
